

Coalition for National Science Funding

FY 2010 NSF Budget Recommendation

The Coalition for National Science Funding (CNSF), an alliance that advocates for the National Science Foundation (NSF), supports an FY 2010 NSF budget of $7.00 billion, the budget allocated to NSF in the President's FY 2010 Budget Request.

CNSF thanks Congress and the Administration for the significant funding for NSF in Public Law 111-5, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 and Public Law 111-8, the FY 2009 Omnibus Appropriations Act. NSF-supported science, mathematics, and engineering research and education projects are critical contributors to technological innovation in this country. The funding for NSF in these Acts will allow the agency to broaden its reach and enhance the nation's capability to make new discoveries, leading to new innovations.

An FY 2010 NSF budget of $7.00 billion will enable the NSF to continue to fund worthy projects that promote transformational and multidisciplinary research, provide needed scientific infrastructure, and contribute to preparing a globally engaged science, technology, engineering, and mathematics workforce.